CHILDHOOD, REMADE.

Squishies, slime and the return to a familiar feeling.

A consumer insight.
A co-designed collection.
A business case to test.

Original pixel illustration / Concept demo and fieldwork preparation; no collected buyer results.

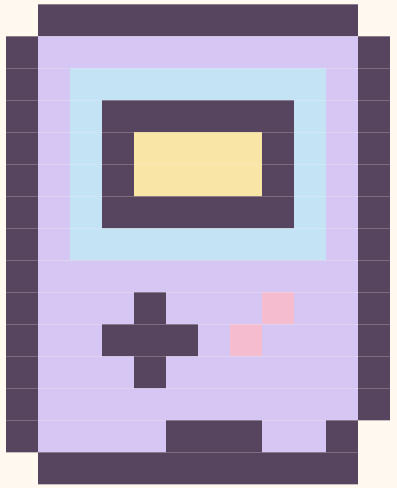

Old toys. New spending power.

EVIDENCE / SAMPHENG

25 JUN 2026

Working adults return to childhood wishes.

A vendor described buyers using their own income to buy toys they once wanted.

What changes?

The buyer’s spending power and the online trigger.

S1 / Thai PBS World, 25 Jun 2026. A reported local signal; the adult market size is unknown.

Check who is actually buying.

SECOND SIGNAL

Mega Plaza’s buyers were mainly children and teenagers.

Thairath’s visit supports a broader revival. It does not confirm the working-adult segment.

YOUR FIELDWORK / PENDING

1 Confirm recent buyers.

Working status, product and purpose.

2 Ask before showing the idea.

Memory and discovery, in their own words.

3 Keep the real evidence.

Date, sample size, photo and a consented quote.

The memory changes the value.

THE REPORTED ACCOUNT

Adult income makes a childhood wish possible.

Sampheng vendor account, paraphrased by Thai PBS World.

EMOTIONAL MOTIVATION

Memory
A familiar object has personal meaning.

Enjoyment
The texture is part of the reward.

Choice
The adult buyer chooses for themself.

S1 / Interpretation to test. Relaxation is a sought benefit; no medical effect is established.

Social discovery brings the idea back.

REPORTED

Reviews renew attention.

Thai PBS World links the revival to influencer and celebrity reviews.

INTERPRETATION

Other adults can make play feel normal.

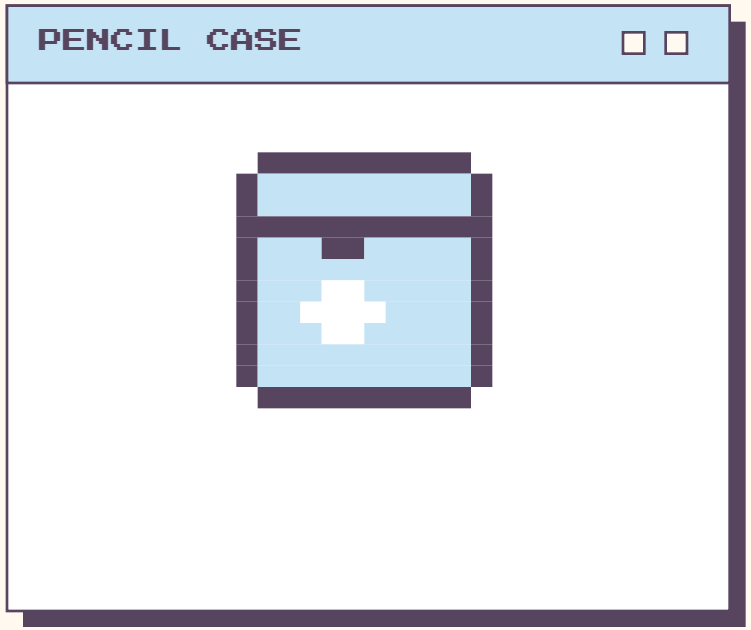

Ask what triggered discovery, then ask what motivated the purchase.

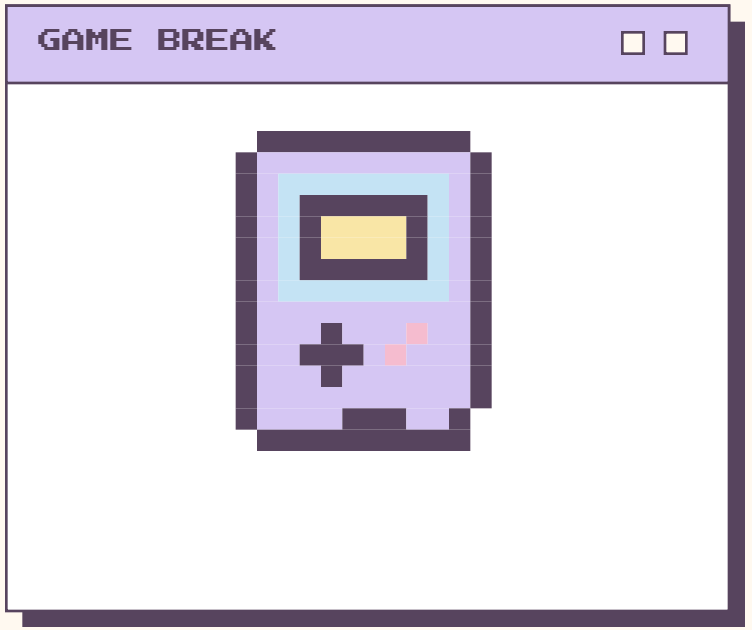

A shared design or a vote is not a paid order.

S1 / Sharing is a proposed channel for REPLAY LAB; engagement does not establish willingness to pay.

A familiar feeling. A chosen design.

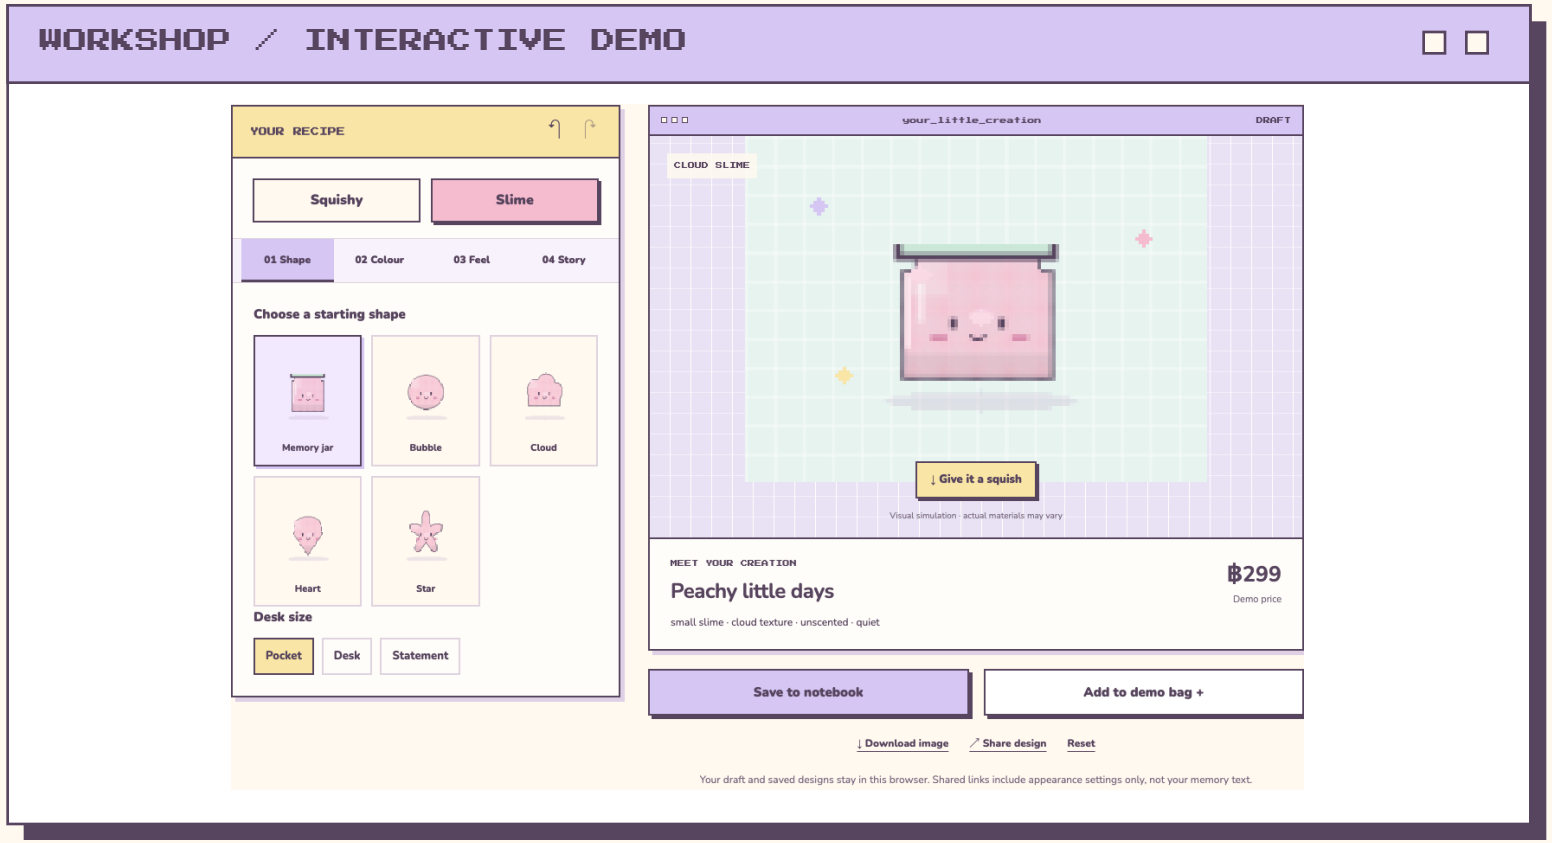

Choose a shared shape.

Personalise the colours, sensory options and story.

S2 / Rebound and scent are reported product features. These childhood themes are proposed designs.

Design it. Test demand. Make a batch.

THE BUSINESS BEHIND THE DEMO

Co-design

Develop a small collection.

Pre-order

Publish a minimum batch.

Produce or refund

Only after costs and samples are checked.

Browser-local demo / no real payment, order, production or aggregate customer data.

Make the difference specific.

SHARED FOR THE COLLECTION

- Childhood theme
- Core shapes
- Supplier process

CHOSEN BY THE CUSTOMER

- Colours + texture
- Name + memory card
- Personal story

Revenue: product sales. Shared shapes help control production complexity.

S5 / Photo-custom squishies already exist. The proposed focus is Thai childhood memories and adult use.

Three risks need an answer.

1	Willingness to pay	A cheaper ready-made toy may still win.
2	Production complexity	Options can add mistakes, delays and cost.
3	Continued demand	Nostalgia may prompt only one purchase.

REAL CASE / OCPB / 30 JUN 2026

Incomplete labels at some Mega Plaza sellers: check products, suppliers and information.

S4 / The inspection concerns some sellers. It does not establish that every squishy is unsafe.

Orders must cover a real batch.

ILLUSTRATIVE SQUISHY CASE / THB

ASSUMPTION		ASSUMPTION		ASSUMPTION
349	−	199	=	150
Base price		Variable cost		Contribution per unit

THB 4,500 ÷ THB 150 = 30 units

Actual threshold must also meet the supplier’s minimum order quantity.

All figures are assumptions, not actual supplier costs or demand. The proposed 30-unit threshold needs supplier validation.

START WITH ONE COLLECTION.

Interview working adults.

Test the prototype and price.

Check a supplier-made sample.

Let weak results change the idea.

CONTINUE ONLY IF

1 People choose it.

At a price that can work.

2 Quality is consistent.

The sample matches the promise.

3 The batch pays.

Orders cover cost and minimum quantity.

REPLAY LAB / the logic

INSPIRATION + NEEDS

S1–S2: reported revival.
Enjoyment, memory, personal choice.
Own fieldwork pending.

DRIVERS + EXPECTATION

Income + online rediscovery.
Help me choose a toy connected to my own childhood. Hypothesis.

FORMAT + WHO

Co-designed small-batch products.
Early-career Thai adults revisiting squishies and slime.

INNOVATION + TEST

Personalise, share and pre-order.
Produce at a viable batch threshold.
Test demand, quality and cost.
